NUR-SULTAN 20 YEARS: YOUNG CITY made from scratch LOOKING TOWARDS THE FUTURE
Nur-Sultan’s life started in 1830 as a Cossack fortress looming over the Ishim River. By the end of 19th century, the outpost had grown into a bustling trading town, spiked with the spires of three Orthodox churches.

Nur-Sultan became a city of cranes as the government relocated the capital from Almaty and the population swelled from 326,000 in 1999 to over 1 million today.

During the Soviet era, the town was chosen as one of the centers for an ill-fated project to transform the steppes of the Kazakh Soviet Socialist Republic into a sea of wheat.

When the Soviet Union collapsed in 1991, Nurultan Nazarbayev became president of an independent Kazakhstan.
