Background and objectives:

- In the last decade, wine tourism has grown in interest and importance for many destinations around the world. Many regions and tourism destinations have realized that the benefits of wine tourism extend well beyond the cellar door to all areas of the regional economy.

- UNWTO defines Wine Tourism as a sub-type of gastronomy tourism that refers to tourism whose purpose is visiting vineyards, wineries, tasting, consuming and/or purchasing wine, often at or near the source.

- Wine, gastronomy, traditions and local culture comprise the core elements of the wine tourism product and provide the lifestyle package that wine tourists seek to experience.

- If efficiently developed, wine tourism represents an excellent opportunity for destinations to diversify and enhance consumer’s value, promote rural development and the revitalization of many areas which may be affected by depopulation and social exclusion. The development of wine tourism further creates opportunities for income thorough its linkages to handicrafts, nature, gastronomy and agro-tourism. Having identified its competitive edge, more and more destinations around the world are looking to position themselves as destinations for wine tourism.

- Under the theme "Co-creating Innovative Experiences", this year’s Conference will analyze how to develop new and innovative wine tourism experiences through the domain of co-creation, digital transformation, consumer knowledge and collaboration.

- The Conference will include workshops on four different topics that will give participants the opportunity to explore further the issues addressed in the sessions and share and exchange ideas interactively.

- A master class on the experience of Chile in the development of wine tourism, based on its differentiating attributes, will open this Conference. Whilst immersive wine tourism experiences in different vineyards of the Colchagua Valley will be offered on the last day of the Conference.

Wine tourism represents a journey for the purpose of experiencing wineries, wine regions, and their links to a lifestyle, encompassing both service provision and destination marketing. It is a complex system as it involves many different sectors such as agriculture, industry and services as well as transport, a natural and cultural environment.

Interest in wine tourism sector has been gradually increasing in recent years. Pair it with the swelling global competition between wine producers; stakeholders of wine tourism are enforced to diversify their offer. Wine tourism experience is personal and subjective. It is a result from the multisensory stimulation combined with emotive aspects of the consumption experience.

This session will further discuss how to successfully offer innovative wine tourism product to create extraordinary and unique experiences to tourists and how to make them commercial as well as profitable.

Workshop 1

Wine tourism as an engine for local development and community empowerment.

To offer extraordinary wine tourism experiences, several key actors ranging from wine farmers to wine producers and sommeliers have to be involved in the designing process.

Although these workers have dedicated themselves to the creation of wine experiences. Still, there’s more to do like being inclusive, employ locals and have the community involved with the wine experiences.

This workshop is based on the understanding of why locals should be involved more in these experiences and why this gives empowerment, promotion and income to destinations.

Facilitator: Sandra Carvao, Chief of Tourism Market Intelligence and Competitiveness, UNWTO

Speakers:
- Mariëtte du Toit-Helmbold, Chief Destineer, Destinate (South Africa)
- Claudia Vecchio, President/CEO, Sonoma County Tourism (USA)

Workshop 2

Wine tourism routes - how to promote cooperation in the creation of wine routes.

The wine tourism routes provide a form of promotion through virtuous circles which integrate all the players in the supply chain.

The economies of scope benefit endogenously from the spread of needs among the stakeholders present in the territory, generating management tools which are able to satisfy the collective needs.

The involvement of all the public and private operators who contribute to the creation of the wine tourism route make it possible to use a bottom up approach in creating effective interconnection among the networks.

The purpose of this workshop is to get a clear idea on how cooperation is better than working alone especially to better position the wine tourism route and to generate better income for all parties involved.

Facilitator: Jaime Valderrama, President, Curicó Valley Wine Route (Chile)

Speakers:
- Alejandro Vigil, Chief, Catena Winery (Argentina)

18:00 – 21:00

Social activities at the Plaza del Vino (Plaza de Armas de Santa Cruz)
Wineries are the core attraction of wine tourism, but they cannot be left alone since they tend to be involved in two different markets, the wine market and the tourism market. It implies a proper understanding of the symbiosis between wine consumer and wine tourist behavior. This could assist wine producers in organizing wine tourism supply, maximizing the winery visitation experience.

The Internet plays huge role in assisting wine tourism producers to understand their consumers. Today, through analyzing big data, key players in wine tourism sector could extract the valuable information regarding the wine tourism consumer on what kind of experience they are looking for, their opinion towards certain services, and more.

This session will analyze how big data can be of advantage and how to best use it to get to know better the customers.

Workshop 1

Going Digital.

The marketing of the wine industry has always been the same for a long time. Such as family business videos, advertising in restaurants, hotels or tourist agencies; making the industry feel in comfort zone, leaving aside digitization. It is important that the industry goes along with technology because new generations (millennials or the z generation) will expect digital marketing, social networks and everything related to new technologies.

The purpose of this workshop is to realize how important technology is in this area and how routes, wineries and vine farms can be upgraded.
- Digital marketing

Workshop 2

The Innovator and the Entrepreneur - Creating the Wow Factor in Winery Visits.

There’s a huge difference between innovator and entrepreneur.

The innovator creates and brings ideas, and the entrepreneur makes the idea real and puts it to work. This workshop will make us understand why is so important in the scenario of wine experiences, to have entrepreneurs and innovators together.
