3. The execution of the programme of work 2010-2011
4. The report on the financial situation of the UNWTO in 2010-2011
5. The restructuring of the UNWTO Secretariat

The Secretary-General said that 2010 was a good year for world tourism, which demonstrated its capacity for recovery in the face of the crisis, posting 7% growth in international arrivals with respect to 2009. He also stated that growth of 4.5% at the world level is expected in the first half of 2011 despite the events in the Middle East and Japan.

As for the region, he pointed out that the recovery was made possible thanks to the increase in tourism in the countries, driven by faster growth of the economies of the emerging countries, which outpaced that of the industrialized countries. The aforementioned recovery was influenced by three important factors: the recovery of the U.S. and Canadian economies, the vitality of the economies of South America and the capacity of the countries to jointly generate multi-destination tourism packages for third markets.

He mentioned that there were still pending challenges as a result of the crisis, among which he underlined the loss of employment at the global level whose recovery is not expected before 2015. Another important challenge is constituted by the austerity measures imposed by many countries and the imposition of new levies and taxes on tourism.

Subsequently he mentioned the importance of raising the awareness of leaders regarding the importance of tourism and that since February 2010 he had met with eighteen (18) heads of state and of government bringing the message of the importance of tourism in the form of a letter that will form part of the "Golden Book", a joint initiative with the World Travel and Tourism Council (WTTC).
He mentioned that currently work is being done for the inclusion of tourism as an item on the agenda of the G-20 and reported that the T-20 ad hoc group which will once again meet next October in France.

As for the execution of the Programme of Work for the biennium 2010-2011, he pointed out that the UNWTO carries out 1.6 activities per week around the world, among which he mentioned World Tourism Day in China, the 7th Forum for Parliamentarians and Local Authorities held in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, in November 2010 and the side event on Tourism and Climate Change in the context of COP16 in Cancun in December 2010.

He invited those present to join the forthcoming United Nations Summit on Sustainable Development “Rio + 20” which will be held in the eponymous city on 4-6 June 2012 and reported on the establishment of the UNWTO Knowledge Network, inviting the countries to join it.

He informed that work was being done to prepare the “Tourism 2030” report that will be presented on the occasion of the next General Assembly in the Republic of Korea in October 2011.

He discussed the financial situation of the UNWTO, which he described as solid. He highlighted the contingency fund that had been created and said that if the estimates are borne out, it would be possible to consider the funding of additional priorities in the second half of the year. He mentioned the creation of a new programme aimed at seeking additional funding sources that would allow the UNWTO to augment its reach and the services it provides without increasing the regular budget.

Lastly, he reported on the finalization of the restructuring of the UNWTO Secretariat and added that this aspect and other strategic matters are explained in the White Paper whose final draft will be presented at the General Assembly in the Republic of Korea.

The delegate of Costa Rica expressed thanks for the Secretary-General's exposition and highlighted two points: the need for an in-depth study on the repercussions of the crisis, as well as the desirability of continuing to make progress in the area of consumer protection norms.

e) Other matters

The Regional Director for the Americas gave a presentation on the different activities being carried out in the UNWTO and in the region:

- Regarding the UNWTO Knowledge Network he said that it is a special programme under the direct leadership of the Secretary-General. Its function is to create and manage a worldwide association of Tourism Think Tanks (TTTs), UNWTO Strategic Knowledge Centres and UNWTO Knowledge Institutions for the development of research and knowledge management standards relative to tourism analysis, policies and governance.

- National and regional TTTs and the UNWTO Strategic and Institutional Knowledge Centres, grouped together in the UNWTO Knowledge Network, serve the Organization and its Member States in all matters related to technical advice and decision-making in the areas of sustainability and climate change, innovation in products and procedures, competitiveness and excellence in the governance of tourism.

- The Executive Director took the floor to talk about the Initiative. (Hotel Energy Solutions) a programme designed to provide information and free technical support with the objective of increasing the potential savings by SME hotels through the efficient use of energy and renewable-energy technologies.
He also discussed the document “Tourism 2030” (under preparation) which will present the long-term (quantitative) trends and key issues (qualitative) both present and future, and whose aim is to assist members in the design of long-term strategic plans, provide a global reference source regarding the future development of tourism and to serve as a basis for the strategic documents of the UNWTO.

- The Regional Director subsequently took the floor to talk about InRouTe. (acronym of International Network on Regional Economics, Mobility and Tourism), a non-profit association that advises the UNWTO and whose objective consists in providing guidelines to institutions related with local/regional destinations with the goal of implementing a plan for the measurement and (economic) analysis of tourism needed in order to design effective tourism policy.

- He informed the countries of the Commission about the Organization's new publications: Cruise Tourism: Current Situation and Trends; Budgets of National Tourism Administrations, 2008-2009; Demographic Change and Tourism; Joining Forces: Collaborative Processes for Sustainable and Competitive Tourism; Manual on Tourism and Poverty Alleviation; Tourism and Biodiversity; Tourism and Migration; etc.

He went on to talk about the Technical Seminar on Tourism Investments in the Americas organized as part of the meeting of the Regional Commission and explained that it was an activity structured into two phases: a first part, more conceptual and theoretical, to be held during the afternoon and the following day in the context of the meeting, and a more practically oriented part with professional meetings scheduled in the context of FITUR 2012 in Madrid. He then gave the floor to the Director of FITUR, a UNWTO Affiliate Member, who urged the participants to take full advantage of all the activities held during FITUR and said that after the completion of the Technical Seminar of Tourism Investments in the Americas, the format of the meetings scheduled for FITUR as a continuation of the seminar would be explained in greater detail.

The Regional Director underlined the activities aimed at attracting new members in the region, such as the cases of Belize, the United States or the independent states of the Caribbean.

Information was also provided on the negotiations held with the Organization of Americas States (OAS), which culminated with the signing of a cooperation agreement between the OAS and the UNWTO in the field of tourism. The representative of the OAS invited the UNWTO Secretary-General to endorse the cooperation agreement, previously signed by the Secretary-General of the OAS, whose objectives are to strengthen cooperation, information exchange, and joint work between the two organizations, in activities such as advising on matters of common interest and the capacity building of the Member States of the OAS.

The representative of Affiliate Member Amadeus then took the floor and presented, within the framework of Corporate Social Responsibility, the project for technological support to small hotels in Brazil, through the institution Marca Brasil.
Lastly, the Minister of Tourism of Paraguay invited all those present to participate in the forthcoming edition of the International Tourism Fair of Paraguay to be held on 5 and 6 November 2011 in Asunción.

In the round of statements by the countries, the delegate from Costa Rica congratulated the Secretary-General on the initiative of the UNWTO Knowledge Network and expressed his interest in forming part of it. Regarding the Tourism 2030 report, he pointed out that a study should be carried out to determine why the principal generating markets always maintain the same destinations, and that it would be important to be able to have a strategy to attract these flows to the Americas. He also suggested that the UNWTO continue examining the repercussions on tourism of the recent financial crisis and the effects produced in the banking restrictions and the new exit taxes that some countries are applying.

The delegate of Jamaica congratulated the representatives of the UNWTO on the work done and discussed the problems of air connectivity in the region, which hurt many tourism destinations, especially island destinations as is the case of Jamaica and called for the creation of alliances in order to prevent airfare problems. He underlined that the energy challenge is not a something temporary.

The delegate of Uruguay expressed thanks for the effort made by the UNWTO and mentioned that the MERCOSUR meeting prior to the UNWTO Regional Commission had been the biggest in terms of representativity and said that he was impressed by the volume of work of the UNWTO. He likewise highlighted the importance of the relations of the UNWTO with other international organizations as in the case of the OAS and that a similar agreement should be considered with UNASUR.

The delegate of Guatemala said that the presentation of data by the Regional Director constituted a call to reflection in order to act not only at the global level but also at the regional level and said that it was necessary to lay down goals in order to carry out regional work in a coordinated manner.

The delegation of Spain expressed gratitude for the opportunity to participate in these meetings and to show its willingness and commitment in favour of the development of the tourism industry. It hailed the excellent results the region is having and said that this is thanks to the work of the governments. It invited those present to participate in the First Congress on Ethics and Tourism to be held in Madrid on 15 and 16 September 2011.

The delegate of El Salvador congratulated the Secretary-General and thanked the Minister of Tourism of Paraguay for the attention received. He invited all the delegations to the Inter-American Tourism Congress organized jointly with the OAS and to be held in his country on 29-30 September 2011.

The delegate of Venezuela mentioned that the pending challenge of the coming years will consist in seeking the mechanisms that can enable us to access the Russian and Chinese markets, which will be the principal generating markets in the coming years, as well as how to improve air connectivity between the countries of the region.
The Secretary-General drew some conclusions based on the statements by the countries:

- He encouraged new mechanisms to be studied to facilitate the entry of tourists from the principal generating markets, giving the example of the case of Turkey in its visa policy for the Russian market.
- He urged the countries to join the Knowledge Network, as the objective of the UNWTO is to have at least one institution per country.
- The UNWTO is working with an objective that is to improve the people's living conditions and urged the countries to join in the achievement of this task with policies of social tourism.

Prior to concluding the agenda item, the Regional Director informed those present about the holding of the Ministers' Summit on the occasion of the next edition of the WTM in London on 9 November 2011.

Below is a list of other activities in the region that were not mentioned at the meeting due to lack of time:

- Tourism Satellite Account (TSA) Workshop in Uruguay

  The new cooperation programme between the IDB and the UNWTO was initiated with the holding of a Workshop on Tourism Statistics for MERCOSUR held in Montevideo on 11-15 April 2011 with the participation of representatives of national tourism administrations, national statistics offices and central banks, and represents an important step toward more homogeneous cooperation in the measurement of tourism flows in the sub-region. The project forms part of the objectives of both organizations to improve national systems of tourism statistics with the aim of accelerating regional integration.

- Case study: Uruguay-IE

  Through an agreement between the UNWTO Themis Foundation and the “Instituto de Empresa de España” business school, a case study was prepared on Tourism in Uruguay, analysing the conditions that gave rise to proportionally much higher foreign-exchange income growth than the increase in arrivals. This study will be used as a teaching tool by Instituto de Empresa and its network of business schools. This marked the first time that a Business School prepared a case study on a country and not on a business.

- 4th Tourism Outlook Seminar (TOS)

  This was held in Montego Bay, Jamaica, on 19-20 April 2011. It was organized by the Ministry of Tourism of Jamaica with the collaboration of the UNWTO. Among the main topics discussed were the following: competitiveness in tourism, diversification in the products offered by traditional destinations, responsible tourism - benefits for destinations and local communities, communications media, cruises, updating in businesses – planning strategies, profit maximization, financing, marketing and branding.
- Workshop toward Sustainable Tourism

Scheduled for 22-24 June in Roatán, Honduras. Organized by SITCA with the collaboration of the UNWTO. The objectives of the workshop will be to present and explore the possibilities that tourism can contribute, as well as the opportunities of collaboration in projects and thematic areas, including the environment and climate change, gender equality and empowerment of women, poverty reduction through tourism, culture and development, generating employment for young people and the involvement of the private sector. Additionally, information will be provided on the opportunities offered by the UNWTO in the processes of economic and social development in the region (MDG-F).

The event will provide a platform for exchanging opinions about the subject of regional integration as a vehicle for achieving common development goals through sustainable tourism in a more effective and efficient manner. The workshop is aimed at government leaders, civil society organizations and the private sector of Central American countries.

- Seminar on Tourism with a Conscience in Ecuador

To be held in Quito, Ecuador, on 27 and 28 June 2011. Organized by the Ministry of Tourism of Ecuador in collaboration with the UNWTO.

Objective: to facilitate a space for technical-professional exchange to present diverse points of view that are committed to human development and sustainable tourism, with an emphasis on current climate and social factors that directly and indirectly affect tourism and the contribution of tourism with a conscience to mitigate their consequences. Special emphasis will be given to two vehicles: Sustainable tourism – instruments and management of tourism destinations, and the Global Code of Ethics for Tourism, where tourism is a vehicle for peace and an effective instrument for poverty reduction.

- Seminar with the communications media at CATM

Scheduled tentatively to be held on 19 October in Panama during the CATM. The objective is to raise awareness among the media regarding the importance of tourism and the way of treating information relative to it.

ANNEX II

CONCLUSIONS OF THE TECHNICAL SEMINAR ON TOURISM INVESTMENTS IN THE AMERICAS

1. In the current post-crisis period, the economic framework of the Region presents a much more encouraging scenario than during the pre-crisis period. Latin America and the Caribbean are not only benefiting from increasing political stability, but they are also showing growth in Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) that is much higher than in other regions.

2. Economic growth forecasts for 2011 and 2012 are also positive, surpassed only by those for Asia, in particular China and India.

3. In particular, the economies of the Latin American and Caribbean sub-region will benefit from the consequences of favourable external-financing conditions as well as from the strong demand and high prices in commodities.

4. Development banks and multilateral public institutions believe in tourism as an essential source of growth and job creation, which stands to gain from the growth of the middle classes of emerging countries.

5. Most of the countries of the region have programmes for capturing tourism investments, generally based on a series of tax incentives, which gives rise to a certain degree of intra-regional competition. In this regard, it is useful to cite cases such as that of Colombia, which offers a Government-Investor tax agreement that establishes long-term taxation parameters, or that of Mexico, which offers complete infrastructure and comprehensive maintenance for its Integrally Planned Centres, eschewing tax-based incentives.

6. Tourism has attracted growing attention among local investors and, in turn, governments are becoming more attentive to the sector and are taking greater care to ensure investment reliability, aware of its importance as a factor in the investment decision.

7. In many cases, governments understand that in order to capture tourism investments, it is necessary to first attract tourist interest in visiting their countries. Therefore, they design their international promotion strategies with two overlapping objectives: attracting tourists and capturing investors.

8. There is unanimous conviction that connectivity and, consequently, infrastructure constitute decisive factors in attracting tourism investments. In this aspect, perhaps more so than in any other, cooperation is necessary between the public administrations and the private sector.
9. It is necessary to keep in mind that connectivity should be intermodal, and consequently, any Master Plan must take into account air connections as well as land connections, such as roads and railways, in order to be fully efficient and to give competitiveness to tourism destinations.

10. In general, governments experience some kind of attraction to the possibility of hosting air transport hubs, as a means of boosting tourism to their countries. This possibility, in reality, is controlled by the airlines, and weighing heavily on their decision will be the available connectivity.

11. From the perspective of the private sector, tax incentives are not the primary factor in making the decision to make tourism investments in a country. More important is the evaluation of factors that determine the reliability of the investment: the potential touristic market, domestic and international, the legal framework, the application of arbitration, systems for the protection of investments including treaties preventing double taxation, stable tax regimes and the priority of tourism in public policies.

12. The major hotel chains are planning to increase their presence in the region and also state that medium-sized firms in their sector are also interested in establishing themselves in the region.

13. Although some countries such as Argentina and Brazil have official credit lines, a certain reluctance can be observed on the part of the private banking sector to finance tourism projects in Latin America and the Caribbean, due possibly to the low level of knowledge about the tourism sector on the part of the regional offices of international private banks. National administrations and the private sector must work together to make possible a better understanding of the sector by private banking.

14. It should be noted that major hotel chains with experience in the sector observe in 2010/2011 a greater willingness on the part of local private investors to join projects promoted by the chains.

15. The unanimous opinion is very much in favour of the continuation of this type of forums, open to the participation of diverse actors, both public and private, involved in the development of tourism. Another positive development is the announced second part of the Seminar, to be held in a more customized form, scheduled for January 2012 on the occasion of FITUR.
