Tourism: From Crisis to Transformation

“Tourism is one of the world’s most important economic sectors. It employs one in every ten people on earth and provides livelihoods to hundreds of millions more.”

“It is imperative that we rebuild the tourism sector in a safe, equitable and climate friendly manner.”

— António Guterres, Secretary-General, United Nations

“This crisis is an opportunity to rethink the tourism sector and its contribution to people and planet; an opportunity to build back better towards a more sustainable, inclusive and resilient sector that ensure the benefits it delivers are enjoyed widely and fairly.”

— Zurab Pololikashvili, Secretary-General, UNWTO
1 An unprecedented shock

The COVID-19 pandemic has been the greatest health, economic and social crisis of our time. For tourism it brought unprecedented disruption, with a massive drop in travel resulting from a global lockdown and widespread restrictions put in place to curb the spread of the virus. As of 6 April 2020, 96% of all worldwide destinations had introduced travel restrictions in response to the pandemic.

There is little doubt that tourism was the most affected of all sectors, with businesses, and livelihoods around the world severely impacted. This is particularly true for many developing countries, especially small island developing states (SIDS), as well as for women and youth, for whom tourism is a leading source of opportunity.

In 2019, global international tourist arrivals reached 1.5 billion on the back of a decade of uninterrupted growth. Arrivals increased by an average of 5% per year between 2009 and 2019, or by an aggregate level of as much as 63%.

Hand-in-hand with such growth, tourism became one of the world’s major socio-economic sectors. In 2019 export revenues from tourism amounted to USD 1.7 trillion, equivalent to 28% of global trade in services and 7% of overall exports of goods and services. The direct economic contribution of tourism amounted to USD 3.5 trillion in 2019, or 4% of world GDP.1 The sector supported millions of jobs, either directly and indirectly, and was established as a leading employer of women and youth.

(e) Estimates as of November 2021
2020 brought international tourism back to the levels of 30 years ago. International arrivals declined by 73%, from 1.5 billion to 402 million, by far the largest annual fall in the sector’s history. This compares with the fall of just 4% drop registered at the peak of the 2009 global economic crisis.

The economic contribution of tourism, which amounted to USD 3.5 trillion in 2019, or 4% of world GDP, measured in tourism direct gross domestic product (TDGDP) was cut by more than half in 2020,\(^2\) plunging by USD 2.0 trillion, to 1.8% of world GDP. This represents about 70% of the overall decline in world’s GDP in 2020. Additionally, USD 1.1 trillion were lost in export revenues from international tourism in 2020, a 63% drop in real terms and a share of 42% of the total loss in international trade in 2020.\(^3\)

2021 has brought positive news. In an unparalleled achievement, less than two years after the declaration of a pandemic by the World Health Organization (WHO), various vaccines were approved, and 50% of the world’s population has received at least one dose. While vaccine equity remains far away, the progress that has been made, alongside increased coordination among governments, has resulted in a significant easing of travel restrictions and rising consumer confidence.

However, the crisis is far from over. For the period January–September 2021 the decline in international tourist arrivals is estimated at 76% when compared to 2019. UNWTO estimates 2021 will end with a fall of between 70% and 75%. At the same time, direct tourism GDP is expected to slightly increase to 2% of global GDP by the end of 2021 following the rebound of domestic tourism and higher spending in both domestic and international travel.
2  A long and winding road

UNWTO Global Tourism Crisis Committee (GTTC) — Uniting the sector

On 9 March 2020 a UNWTO delegation led by the Secretary General met in Geneva with the Director General of WHO. A few days later the world went into a complete lockdown, planes were grounded and hotels closed. The world was facing an unprecedented global health emergency. The containment of the pandemic was the utmost priority, and the tourism sector was fully committed to support all measures taken to curb the outbreak. UNWTO worked closely with WHO, its Members States and the sector to ensure a coordinated and effective response. The first meeting of the UNWTO Global Tourism Crisis Committee was convened on 20 March. Over the course of 20 months the Committee held 11 meetings, providing guidance to the sector and a unique coordination mechanism worldwide. From the outset of the crisis UNWTO has taken immediate steps to address the most pressing challenges — support the fight against the pandemic, unite the sector and sustain threatened jobs and companies.

The GTCC comprises representatives of UNWTO’s Member States and Affiliate Members, the World Health Organization (WHO), the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO), International Labour Organization (ILO) and the International Maritime Organization (IMO). The private sector is represented by Airports Council International (ACI), Cruise Lines International Association (CLIA), International Air Transport Association (IATA) and World Travel & Tourism Council (WTTC).
Together we restart tourism

The magnitude, volatility and unparalleled nature of the crisis required an unprecedented level of coordination and adaptation as well as of economic support for the sector. Restoring consumer confidence, advancing safe mobility and establishing safety at destinations were top priorities.

UNWTO has worked with WHO, ICAO, the European Commission and ISO to support and advance the harmonization of travel protocols and create common sets of regulations while at the same time continuing to call for the financial support to jobs and companies stressing in particular the impact on the most vulnerable such as women and youth. UNWTO and CNN also partnered to tell the world we need to #RestartTourism.

Accelerating the transformation — An opportunity to rethink and restart

The Global Tourism Crisis Committee brought the sector together to face up to the biggest challenge in its history. As well as addressing the issues of the present, members also looked to the future. Out of crisis can come opportunity, with a chance to accelerate the progress global tourism had been making in key areas such as sustainability and inclusivity before the pandemic hit.
Under the leadership of the Global Tourism Crisis Committee, UNWTO has coordinated the sector’s response to the crisis, to advance safe mobility and restart travel while ensuring that the recovery leads to a more inclusive, sustainable, and resilient tourism.
3 From crisis to transformation

Crisis management

Reflecting the immediate impacts of the crisis, UNWTO’s efforts were deployed with a focus on the following priorities:

1. Creating a holistic and relevant coordination mechanism that would ensure an effective understanding of the crisis and then effective action plans, namely through supporting the global efforts in curbing the spread of the pandemic while supporting the millions of livelihoods dependent on tourism. In this context, the UNWTO Global Tourism Crisis Committee, gathering UN agencies including WHO, UNWTO Members States and the major private sector associations, provided a unique coordination mechanism. Alongside the activation of the Committee, UNWTO played an active role in representing the interest of its Members States at other intergovernmental mechanisms, namely at WHO’s working group and at the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) Council Aviation Recovery Taskforce (CART).

2. Providing guidance to countries on policy measures to sustain jobs and mitigate the immediate impact of the crisis. UNWTO provided a set of 23 actionable recommendations and called for:
   - Financial and political support for recovery measures targeting the tourism sector;
   - Recovery measures and incentives to be planned and implemented in coordination with international development and donor organizations; and
   - Tourism support to be included in the wider recovery plans and actions of affected economies.

3. Understanding the true impact of the crisis and providing reliable and up to date intelligence – UNWTO provided the clear and trusted data to help guide tourism policies and business decisions.

Priority
Support the fight against the pandemic and sustain tourism jobs and companies.

Priority
Restoring mobility, promote safe travel, enhance coordination and consumer confidence while supporting the survival of the sector.

Priority
Accelerate the transformation of the sector towards a more resilient, inclusive and sustainable future maximizing the opportunities of innovation and digitalization.

Restart tourism

Under the leadership of the Global Tourism Crisis Committee, UNWTO has focussed its actions on:

- Promoting the harmonization of travel protocols and safety and security measures at the destinations;
- Building Recovery Packages for its Member States;
- Setting global guidelines to restart tourism;
- Providing the most up-to-date market intelligence on travel patterns and border restrictions;
- Ensuring recovery measures and safety protocols promote a sustainable and inclusive recovery, protecting the most vulnerable and minimizing the impact on the environment;
- Promoting jobs and skills development.

Main outcomes

Promoting Travel and Mobility

ICAO CART
UNWTO was an active part in ICAO’s COVID-19 Aviation Recovery Task Force (CART), working to identify and recommend strategic priorities and policies for countries and aviation industry operators and representing the wider tourism sector.

ISO/PAS 5643:2021
UNWTO was part of the development of the ISO PAS643, the only worldwide global harmonized standard for COVID-19 protocols for tourism covering the whole tourism value chain including 20 subsectors.

With the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) and the Organization of American States (OAS), UNWTO supported the development of harmonized Biosafety Protocols in Tourism for Latin America and the Caribbean.

Policy Guidance

Global Guidelines to Restart Tourism
UNWTO Guidelines provided both governments and businesses a comprehensive set of measures designed to help them open tourism up again in a safe, seamless and responsible manner. They are the product of shared knowledge and inputs from across the public and private sectors and from several UN agencies.

UNWTO/G20 Tourism Working Group Alula Framework for Community Development
Under the leadership of the 2020 G20 Saudi Presidency, UNWTO and the G20 Tourism Working Group developed the AlUla Framework for Inclusive Community Development through Tourism to help fulfil the sector’s potential to contribute to and achieve inclusive community development and the Sustainable Development Goals.

UNWTO identified the challenges standing in the way of tourism's restart and key opportunities to return stronger and better. Building on the progress made before the pandemic hit, UNWTO-led initiatives help to restore trust in travel, and to work with businesses and destinations to embrace the power of innovation and digital.

Alongside this, UNWTO is leading global tourism in facing up to and meeting its climate action responsibilities. UNWTO served as the voice of tourism at the UN Climate Change Conference (COP26 in Glasgow. Here, the Glasgow Declaration on Climate Action was launched, signaling a sector-wide commitment to reduce emissions and work towards net-zero.

To enable positive change, UNWTO is also leading the implementation of a United Nations Fund for Climate Neutrality of Tourism, an innovative financing instrument designed to respond to the existential threats posed by the climate emergency.
Main outcomes

Glasgow Declaration on Climate Action in Tourism
Launched at the United Nations Climate Change Conference (COP26), the Glasgow Declaration commits signatories to halving their carbon emissions within ten years and reaching net-zero by 2050 at the latest. It is the first globally consistent approach to climate action in tourism, bringing together the latest research and global expertise. Already, more than 300 tourism stakeholders have signed up to the Declaration, including leading industry players to destinations, countries and other tourism stakeholders ranging from large to small. The Glasgow Declaration was developed through the collaboration of UNWTO, the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP), Visit Scotland, the Travel Foundation and Tourism Declares a Climate Emergency, within the framework of the One Planet Sustainable Tourism Programme committed to accelerate sustainable consumption and production patterns.

International Code for the Protection of Tourists
The first ever global code on the protection of tourists is a landmark legal framework designed to restore trust and confidence in travel and make clear the responsibility all stakeholders in the sector. Developed with the contribution of more than 100 countries, alongside international organizations and leading business, the Code will be presented for adoption at the 24th UNWTO General Assembly in Madrid.

Launch of the Glasgow Declaration on Climate Action in Tourism, November 2021.
UNWTO Digital Futures Programme
Created to facilitate the adoption of digital technologies, and innovative solutions that improve tourism SMEs’ resilience, sustainability, and competitiveness through cooperation within the tourism ecosystem, including public-private partnerships in response to COVID-19.

“We need to work urgently together within a consistent sector-wide approach to accelerate change and therefore I encourage tourism stakeholders to subscribe the Glasgow Declaration on Climate Action in Tourism.”

Communication and outreach

UNWTO has been the single, clear and strong voice of tourism from the start of the crisis. Utilizing its expanded digital platform, building on a new-look website and more dynamic social media channels, UNWTO’s message has enjoyed unprecedented reach. At the same time, UNWTO has strengthened existing media partnerships or embarked on new partnerships with key media players, including CNN International, Facebook, Euronews and Xinhua News Agency. As UNWTO leads the restart of tourism, collaboration with Instagram and Netflix will use the power of storytelling to highlight the sector’s transformation into a more sustainable and inclusive sector.
